They are both pressed into the service of disunion-the one to mislead the passions, the other the imagination.

LT A story rather difficult of belief, is told by the Albany papers. A lady from Troy went to that city a few days since, and failing to reach the atage in season, to return, was compelled to stay over night. She retired to rest at the usual hour, but her friends were surprised to find her missing in the morning. Their astonishment was not diminished, the next day, at learning that some time during the night she had got up in her sleep, wrapped a cloak around her, and walked all the way to her residence in Troy, without awakening. as the Government based its whole action on the idea of protecting property.

Ool. Hayne contends that the question should be considered as one involving property slone, and as such it could be easily arranged. He says further, that he is instructed to assure the President that any attempt to reinforce the fort will be considered a declaration of war.

The Cabinet was in session to-day on the communication. The anticipation is, that the President will only reply to Col. Hayne, that he will send a communication to Congress, and that he will reply to the reasoning in a special message. This course deprives Col. Hayne of a rejoinder. Col. Hayne leaves on Monday. A critical examination of the condition of the Squadro, demonstrating the fact that every ship was short of provisions, and that it would be madeess to send them pression prevailed extensively that the vessels would go to Havanna for provisions and then chey the instructions of the Powhattan, when her destination became known to them. The 3d Lieut, Furser, and ist Lieut, immediately tendered their resignations but the Captain while conditionally accepting them refused to allow their return to the Steamer. The most intense excitement existed in the squadron, and it was found necessary to issue an order prohibiting all officers, sailors and marines from conveying political views or naval movements, in their letters, as they would be opened and read.
